Topic 1- Increase Your Mind Power

Today is the day of instant pizza, instant coffee, same day goods delivery, half an hour food delivery. Now all this instant gratification weakens our minds and habits which prove to be quite harmful for our body and mind. It weakens our mind power and body strength as we intake things which are untimely and maybe just not required by the body at that moment.

We succumb to our minds desire and that's why we suffer. The main reason for our suffering is no control over our minds.

Method-

Whenever craving erupts- don't succumb to it. Watch it- Control it – deny it. Not that you have to deprive yourself- for example you want to have ice-cream don't immediately pick your phone and order. Watch your mind ask yourself "Oh, so I feel like having ice-cream?" Wait, succumbing to craving is harmful to your mind and body. Maybe having it at that moment would only add to your calories and unwanted fat and also weaken your mind power which will only make you lazier, feeling lethargic and lacking energy.

So, I am not saying don't have your ice-cream, surely have it, but not when you mind craved for it, have it when you know that you are not having out of any craving just having when it suits your body best. Same goes with those who are into smoking, drinking alcohol and other such cravings.

With this mind power you will be much more confident, gain great will power which will help you in all spheres of life. Mind will be stronger, physical health will be much better and you will be wealthy as you will save on unnecessary expenses which you could rather invest in better avenues of financial growth. Yes, it all starts small.

Breathing technique to curb cravings

Topic 2- Understanding Fear

We are in the habit of hoarding souvenirs, receipts, clothes, broken appliances, old magazines and many more such useless and never to be required items.

Same way we also hold on to our Pride, Anger, Ego, Outdated Opinions and Fears.

When we are so attached to material things, imagine how difficult it would be to let go of our pride, anger, ego, outdated opinions and fears. Yes, it's extremely difficult and there lies all the miseries. So, then what happens is we automatically close ourselves to new ideas, fresh perspectives, greater possibilities and an extremely bright future.

Sadly, our beliefs become the only truth and reality that we know and we start behaving that way- this completely limits us and our growth. It puts us at great distance between us and anyone whose beliefs are different. This distance not only separates us but also feeds our stupid ego and pride. I call it stupid because it does not help us in any way. It only harms us and hampers our growth.

Ok, so now let's ask this question to ourselves – why do we hold on to these beliefs and opinions that do not help us in any way and actually only destroy us, as they act like our enemies in preventing us to excel and to thrive in life. The answer to this is – FEAR.

We are terrified of –

CHANGE

THE UNKNOWN

And you know the irony till we don't accept and befriend the change, strangers, the new, the unknown we are only stopping our own progress.

How will our fear go away? Our fear will go away and everything is possible only if we LIVE FOR EACH OTHER.

MANTRA- Anything not meant to benefit others is simply not worth doing. All the happiness comes from wanting others to be happy. All the sadness comes from wanting only the self to be happy.

But remember don't make others happy for their validation of you. Don't make others happy just to impress. Don't make others happy just to fit in. Don't make others happy at the cost of your peace and happiness. Don't make others happy at the cost of your responsibility towards yourself and your family. These are again subtle ways to feed your ego. These are just a sure shot way to self-destruction and misery.

Lead a life where we are adding value to others. It could be by simply a smile, a compliment, lending an ear, helping out, teaching or simply sending them good vibes and blessings… anything that adds value to them… and your fear will vanish. Also, you will see that your pride, anger, jealousy will reduce.

By doing this you will unknowingly open doors in your life which will add value to you and you will keep on growing and evolving happily.

Topic 3- Honouring and Appreciating

We are always rushing towards some goal or dream thinking we'll get happiness there and that with time we'll be richer, calmer, stable, wiser and then we'll be happier. But you know what that's not the way it works. It has never worked that way and also never will. And due to that we spend little or no time appreciating where we are today. By being focused on how they "Could be" we are under appreciating how great things already are.

I know you could say but this is not OK, I am just not happy with my life, I am not happy with my friends, I am not happy with my family, I am not happy with my job and the list can go on and on… But this is the exact mindset that prevents you from achieving your dreams and goals. This is what is blocking you from thriving in life. We are always unsatisfied and discontent. And with this mindset we spoil our present and this is the mantra to spoil your future for sure. As a beautiful future can only be born out of honouring and appreciating the present. There is no other way!

Honour and appreciate your present, see how beautiful it already is and a beautiful future is born.

The method - how do we do that? By being grateful for what we already have. By seeing the beauty and blessings of the things we already have in our lives- health, relationships, money, friendships. And how fortunate we are to have them in the first place.

However they are let's be grateful for them in the first place. You know what they all enrich our lives in some way or the other. Some deep learning is there in all our relationships. The problem is we regard them as inferior to the imaginary versions we have created in our mind.

Also, one more aspect, we give ourselves very little credit for how far we've already come. We tend to give others little or no credit for their own efforts in life.

When we are unforgiving of ourselves- how can we be forgiving of others? When we are impatient with ourselves-how can we be patient with others? When we are judging ourselves – how can we not judge others?

Wouldn't it be great to STOP and just see, reflect on how wonderful everything already is?

Pause for a moment right now and honour the progress you've made in life. Acknowledge the gifts you already have and simply appreciate life itself.

We'll never be done with evolving, growing, learning and expanding.

So, just pause right now and just appreciate what you already have in your life right now. Be it your talents, skills, family, relationships, friends, money whatever it may be.

Short meditation.

Topic 4 – Unlearn your way to Wisdom

Sounds strange, does it? Well, this is the way to wisdom- Unlearn. I know it's sometimes very difficult to accept but we are so full of our conditioning and beliefs that we are not ready for new ideas and letting go of our old beliefs. They are so deeply ingrained in our system that it becomes quite impossible for us to accept or even listen to new ideas. We are under the illusion that we know ultimate truths. That creates tremendous blockages on our way to wisdom. And wisdom is very much required to be big and successful.

As we grow old, we are conditioned by family, teachers, preachers, politicians and society. They tell us whom to love whom to trust what to believe. All this is just so limiting.

So, it's extremely important to unlearn these false conditioning. And how to do that – by being curious. Just be curious of everything around. Question everything you are told and not blindly believing anything till it has not become your experience and your truth and even after that remain open to change that too always. Maybe you were wrong in forming that opinion. Maybe you formed it too soon with limited perspective. Always keep questioning yourself. Always have an open mind and then we open ourselves to unlimited possibilities.

Short Anapanasati Meditation

Topic 5 – Taking Responsibility

Where we are today is a direct result of decisions we've made as far back as 10 years, 20 years ago and also as recent as last night.

We have tremendous personal responsibility for the way our life has turned out and an equally important role for steering it in the future. Each and every decision we make in our lives has far reaching consequences.

Method- Have a crystal-clear idea of the kind of life you want to lead. Then before making any decision ask yourself "will this action that I am considering get me closer or further to the kind of life I want to lead?"

The Key- is to think long term. Far reaching consequences of your decisions and not just instant gratification.

In all probability the easy path, the path of least resistance will often take you away from your goal. The right decision may seem tough for you today, you may get pressures from family, colleagues, friends trying to divert you, discourage you from your goal but stick to your decision, evaluate the long-term benefits and whether its matching with your goals and stick to them.

Its true short-term pain is long term gain. Short term fun is long term misery.

Take care of your health- you'll be able to go on a trek. Take care of your finance- you'll be able to enjoy the good things in life and have a buffer in case of emergencies and you'll be tension free.

Take care of your relationships which uplift you that will keep you in high spirits.

Take time to meditate- this will give you the power, energy, coolness and stability to take the right decision.

There are no shortcuts to any place worth going.

Also, stop blaming others for your dilemma. Look within, we are totally and completely responsible for our lives*. Take full responsibility*.

Insight- Any seemingly unfavourable circumstance like financial loss, illness, relationship issue – is actually a learning. It's all a part of our evolvement necessary for our growth.

Method- Meditate ask divine "What's the learning for me here?" Learn the lesson in it, gain the wisdom from it and it will turn out to be the best blessing ever!

Energy Booster – Treat every living being including yourself with kindness and respect and the world will immediately be a better place. The world as the whole will not change but your world surely will.

Saying- If you really want something you will find a way. If you, don't you will find an excuse- E Janes Rohn.

Short Meditation

Topic 6- Play your Part

Imagine the world as a five-star hotel and every employee playing their part perfectly well from the doorman to the receptionist, housekeeping, room service to the restaurant staff. When all play their part well then that the hotel is a pleasure to stay in - the vibes are great of the place.

Every task has its own importance and value. It is just required that each one only focuses on their work at hand and not think whether the other is doing his part well or not. The minute one becomes more concerned with what someone else is or is not doing, that's when we spoil our part as our energies get diverted, and that's when the vibes of the entire place get spoiled.

We just cannot control what anyone else is up to, we can only be mindful of what we can do individually- and do it well.

Also, one more important thing- don't judge others. For example, I have seen small car owners having this notion that all SUV car owners are rough and rude. Which is just not true. Also, one more example, I have seen vegetarians being hostile towards non veg eaters. That's just not done. It's none of your business. It's their freedom and choice of what they want to eat. Judging them will only and surely harm you though.

Insight- Everything and everyone is subject to time, place and circumstance. We all do not ripen, awaken or mature at the same rate- and you know what- Contrary of what you know is also true- We'll talk more about this statement in chapter 12.

Method- Be gentle with yourself. Kind to others and accept your neighbours unconditionally. Not only if they live according to your beliefs. This mindset will set you free!!

Topic 7- Shine No Matter What

A flower doesn't stop being beautiful just because nobody notices it, nor does it stop to be fragrant because its scent is taken for granted. The flower simply continues to be its glorious self, elegant, graceful and magnificent.

Our mother nature has provided us with these immensely valuable teachers that blossom despite their short lifespan. Stars that continue to shine even if we fail to stare at them and trees that don't feel insulted if we never bow down to them in gratitude for the oxygen they provide.

Important Question- We also have an incredible and unlimited capacity to love, radiate and shine, but the question is-

Can we do it like a flower?
Without needing to be admired, adored or even noticed?
Can we open our hearts completely to give, forgive, celebrate and joyfully live our lives without hesitation?

It seems that most of the time we take things personally and are noticeably deflated when unappreciated. In fact, sometimes we feel devastated- we cry in sorrow and then attempt to guard ourselves by withholding our opinions- using all sorts of protections and defences.

We get hurt even angry when our boss fails to recognize our efforts or a lover pulls their hand away or when a friend forgets our birthday or when we are not invited for a particular event.

Deep Question - Can you imagine a flower showing an attitude for not being praised or the moon dimming its light because we are too self-absorbed to notice it?

Effort- Make an effort to shine no matter what. To love unconditionally and to be a gentle and kind soul even when nobody is watching.

This will fill you up with so much positive energy that your ways will be become so smooth the effortless. Doors will start opening for you. You will be blessed in unexpected ways.

Quote- Everything has its own unique beauty but not everyone can see it- Confucius

Meditation – Hara Breathing

Topic 8- Healthy Relationships

Now this is a question bothering too many people. Truly what can be called a healthy relationship?

Relationships are often misunderstood to be a simple commitment between two people, a dedication to each other with a sense of belonging to one another.

Now that's a very limited perspective and it leads to expectations, possessiveness and disappointment; and it stinks of ownership, greed, ignorance and selfish desire. Expectations and assumptions actually ruin relationships.

A healthy relationship is an agreement between two people to support one another in their life journey and spiritual practice. It's a vow to encourage each other's dedication, devotion and path- free from attachment or expectations; yet full of caring and compassion.

A healthy relationship is based on unconditional love- not the need to possess.

Remember- you lose absolutely nothing by giving your heart- instead stand to gain only.

If each person is equally dedicated to inspire, create, awaken and enrich the lives of other; and there is no hidden agenda then it's such a pure healthy relationship. Also remember its far less important what one receives from the other than what one can give.

Along with intimacy, warmth and tenderness – great relationships would also have patience, vulnerability, honesty, active listening, understanding, connection and unwavering trust. In this type of union there is tremendous healing power and it is capable of enabling deep transformation for people involved.

With the people closest to you, a simple agreement to never intentionally harm one another is sufficient to solidify a healthy and long-lasting relationship. Don't expect much from the other.

Quote- When you release your expectations that the world should fulfil you, your disappointment will vanish- Dan Millman.

Short Meditation

Topic 9- Power of Detachment, Moving On and Let Go

We get attached to impermanent things and--FEELINGS are a perfect example of things that are impermanent, as feelings are always changing. Now we are happy and joyful and another moment we are sad and in tears. So, Buddhism says that if we are attached to things or feelings then our lives will always be full of suffering, distress and pain. But if we live each moment without getting attached to it then we can eliminate the very cause of suffering immediately and can blissfully live our lives.

Although it makes logical sense, it also takes years of training the mind to see feelings in a detached way- especially in the heat of the moment. We all feel sad, hurt, angry, excited, anxious, even joyful and blissful at times but it never lasts for very long. When one feeling passes another feeling will replace it.

It's natural to feel disappointed when things don't work out as you had hoped, but the only true way to respond when that happens is to move on. Difficult as it may seem, it's better and beneficial than trying to cling to what is no longer there. It will make your life much easier. Clinging to what is gone will only add to your misery and pain. This will adversely affect your body and mind only making it more prone to illness and disease. This will also prevent you from grabbing new opportunities which would make your life much more meaningful and fun. You will be open to more love joy and peace in your life.

Method- Whatever feelings you are having… just watch them distastefully. For example, you are feeling joyful just watch it don't become the joy... watch- Oh I am feeling joyful. Then when you are feeling sad again simply watch. Don't become the sadness. Simply watch… oh I am feeling sad. By this method of watching whatever negative feelings emotions you are having will disappear… they will vanish, and your inner positive emotions of peace, joy and bliss will emerge.

Yes, this will require some practice. Try to remember and watch your emotions and you will see the change in your life soon! And whatever is past be it good or bad just let it go. As you may have heard the phrase this too will pass. That's a fact in everyone's life. Everything will pass... good, bad, light, darkness. So don't hold on to anything. Let go!

Also, any things you use, just use it as a means to do your work and lead your life. Don't get attached to anything. Then all your suffering will disappear.

Quote- What comes, let it come. What stays, let it stay; what goes, let it go – Papaji

Vipassana Meditation

Topic 10- Power of Vulnerability

We all have fears, anxieties, shame and regret in our hearts. Yet we rarely share these intimate details with the people close to us. If we are truly committed to maturing as individuals and as a community, we've got to start being vulnerable with one another.

So, if you think it's time to have a serious talk with one another- family, friends, relatives then start by setting some ground rules that keep it a safe place for everyone to share without being interrupted, judged or blamed.

There is no finger pointing in non-violent communication and no "should" statements. You might even want to have mediator present to help keep the conversation calm and focused.

Be gentle with one another and never nullify what someone holds in their heart. Listen with empathy and speak with compassion. Healthy communication can open many doors and dispel assumptions we weren't aware we even had.

As we all have heard- Apologizing doesn't always mean that you're wrong and the other is right. It just means that you value your relationship more than your ego.

You know what, this vulnerability is just so amazing, so cool. It opens your ways. Makes you more human. Helps you get the respect of people. People simply love those who show their human side. This is just so much real and authentic. Believe me you will have much less of pain and misery if you are vulnerable.

Short Meditation

Topic 11- What is Karma?

Someone once tried to explain the law of karma by using a metaphor. They asked us to imagine a figure in the sky that not only watches everything we do, but also rewards us with blessings for our good deeds and punishes us with bad luck for each harmful act.

Well, you know what karma isn't judgement; its consequence- WE are the ones responsible. What we give we receive - that simple. We give out goodwill we will receive goodwill in return. We give out blessings we will receive blessings in return. We give out ill feelings and thoughts then that's what we'll get in return- ill feelings, non-co-operation, blockages on our path.

For example, if you steal from someone today it must be because you don't fully understand the pain of being robbed- for if you truly did, you wouldn't steal. You essentially set the universe in motion to cause someone to steal from you one day, so you understand the pain of being robbed.

This will happen again and again over multiple lifetimes until you finally understand and vow never to steal again. Karma will keep coming back at us until we do not learn the lesson.

It is therefore a good practice to think of everyone we meet as your teacher.

Also Remember- It is very important to honour everyone's path and also respect where everyone currently is on their path. Absolutely no judging anyone, no criticizing anyone, no making fun of anyone and no bad mouthing anyone.

Short Meditation

Topic 12- The Contrary Of What You Know Is Also True

You don't have to agree with other people's choice. You just have to learn to peacefully live with their freedom of choice. This includes political views, religious beliefs, food habits, matters of the heart, career paths and mental afflictions.

The fact is- Our opinions and beliefs tend to change depending on the place and circumstance we are in… and since we all experience life differently, there are multiple theories on what's best, what's moral, what's right and what's wrong.

Important Lesson- It is important to remember that other people's perspective on reality is as valid as your own. Always remember the principle- the contrary of what you know is also true.

The Key- No matter how certain we are of our version of the truth, we must humbly accept the possibility that someone who believes the exact opposite could also be right- as per their time, place and circumstance. That's the key to understanding, forgiveness and patience- and when we have understanding, forgiveness and patience we build great relationships or at least don't have anyone blocking our paths. Which will totally speed up our way to success.

But remember- You should also know when to walk away from people/circumstance that cause anguish, pain, hurt, suffering. Learn when to say NO. Tolerance does not mean accepting what is harmful. Abuse is never justified.

The reason- we allow others to treat us with disrespect is only when we don't love ourselves enough. When you love yourself, you can do anything with dignity and be appreciated for it or you can take your skills and services elsewhere.

Insight- Everyone's upbringing, circumstances, education, financial condition, mental conditioning is different hence their reality is different.

Let's never judge anyone on the choices that they make. Also remember that the opposite of what you know is also true. Every person's perspective on reality is as valid as your own, so no matter how certain you are that what you are doing/thinking is "right" – you must humbly accept the possibility that someone doing the exact opposite might be doing the "right" thing as well.

Also remember- everything is subject to time, place, and circumstance. Things can and do change.

Golden words- have compassion, empathy and blessings for all always. Absolutely no hard feelings for anyone at any cost- hard feelings only harm us - Remember there are no "shoulds" in compassionate thinking. He should have done this he shouldn't have done this. Let all that go.

May all beings live in peace and may all beings be happy and joyful.

Quote- Do all good you can, by all the means you can, in all the ways you can, in all the places you can, at all the times you can, to all the people you can, as long as you can- John Wesley.

Short Meditation

Topic 13- How to Reduce Your Mental Baggage?

Life is an ongoing classroom in which everyone is our teacher and every situation contains a lesson for us to learn. It is only by being patient with yourself that you can learn to be patient with others.

Patience is a very valuable virtue.

We all make our own choices and therefore pay our own prices. That's why be gentle, kind, patient, understanding, loving and compassionate with all beings. They all are going through their journey. We all are always learning.

Important Quote- A lesson will keep on repeating itself until you learn it- Anonymous.

So remember- To surround yourself with like-minded people for comfort and support, but…

Important lesson- Don't forget to honour those who push your buttons just as much if not more- as they are the ones who provide you an opportunity to grow and mature… beyond having any more buttons that can be pushed. They are the ones who make us strong emotionally and mentally.

Important lesson- Don't go to extremes. Extremes will only harm and disconnect you from everyone. Try and hang in the middle ground instead, then nothing can offend you. Even if you want to go to the extreme, always remember to honour and respect people for where they are. Do not discount them as useless or good for nothing. Simply have compassion, acceptance and deep understanding.

Benefits- All this will only clear your mind. Reduce your mental baggage and will make you so mentally free that you will be fully focussed on your work at hand. This will also reduce your bad karma, as judging others only harms us and hits us back badly.

Short Meditation

Topic 14- What is Success?

Success means being happy!

Nobody ever looks back on their lives and says “I should have spent more time in office”. So then why do we make work our priority? It’s because we regard those who work really hard and earn a lot of money as successful.

Is your job/work making you feel that you are only living in parts? Don’t you think that careers are just over rated?

Well, if success comes with having a lot of stress, high blood pressure, diabetes, heart problems, ulcers, heart aches, insomnia- do you really think that kind of success is worth it? Does that really sound like success to you?

Yes, if you love your job/work- you are enjoying there, then great- it must be your calling, surely continue. But remember a job/career/money is not the only way to spell success.

Method- Do what you love... follow your heart and you know what, money will follow you. Be passionate about what you do and money will find a way to reach you. Meditate and you'll get divine guidance as to what you should be doing. Meditate, be in a let go, be in the flow that existence has for you and you will be in pure joy and bliss and success/money will follow. This is a proved and tested method. Thousands have achieved success through this – so will you. Trust, meditate and let go. Yes, do your work, take the efforts and pains, but in things you enjoy and money and success are surely yours.

Important- Don't let the concept of change scare you as much as the prospect of remaining unhappy.

Quote- The difference between who you are and what you want to be is what you do- Anonymous.

Short Meditation

Topic 15- What is Enough?

Sure, it would be nice to eat out every night, drive a bigger car, have a fancier phone and laptop, the ability to travel more frequently- but to work 60 hours a week at a place you don't enjoy is simply not worth it.

It's not that you have sacrificed those things by choosing to work 30 hours a week- NO, you have simply exchanged them for what you personally want more of i.e., getting back home by noon, going swimming, hiking, volunteering at a place you believe in, playing tennis, painting, writing, reading- you name it. You wouldn't be able to do all this by working 60 hours a week at a job which kills you from within- but all this free time is surely great for your mental, spiritual, physical and emotional health.

Please note- there is a difference between the cost of things and the price of things. Cost is the cost in terms of rupees but price is the hours of work at a place which only makes you sadder and leaves you feeling low. Is it worth it?

If you love your job/work- great continue and see how you can also accommodate time for the things of your passion.

Quote- One day you will wake up and there won't be any more time to do the thing you've always wanted to do. Do them now! - Paulo Coelho.

Short Meditation

Topic 16- Follow and Feed Your Faith

Let me tell you a story.

Priya always dreamed of seeing the world outside of her city.

Instead of making the decision to move – she spent her life just pulling on, which meant staying with her abusive husband until he decided to leave her- working in the same job for 15 years where she was just pulling on– and only buying a new car when the old one had to be scrapped.

She didn't realize that NOT making any decision is a pretty big decision in itself.

Her sister Payal on the other hand, pursued a career far away from home and her best friend Swati went on a trip to Goa and decided to stay there only.

So remember- Making a decision can be very empowering. We feel in control of our situation rather than victimised by it.

The reason we don't make decisions is because we fear change and the unknown- so we cling to the past that's already gone and attempt to avoid a future that's inevitable.

Finally taking inspiration from her sister and best friend she quit her job, went to Rishikesh- did her yoga training course and settled there doing a part time job she is happy in and teaching yoga to others. Now she is living the life she loves and enjoys.

Have full faith- trust the process. Trust completely- whatever has happened in your life up to now is surely for some good. We may not know all the secrets/mysteries right now – that's ok. But have faith that it's for some lessons we had to learn some understanding we had to achieve for our growth, evolvement and awakening. Don’t let your past limit your future.

Method- In your battle against fear- don’t focus on letting go of fear- focus on increasing your faith and fear will disappear on its own.

Energy flows where attention goes. So, if you feed your fears, they get bigger, but if you feed your faith- your fears will have nothing to eat and they will eventually die. Always feel within that something good is just round the corner. Continually feel abundant within. As Joe Vitale says- Expect miracles.

Quote- Your past mistakes guide you- not define you- Anonymous.

Topic 17- Power of Words

Telling a child when she is small that she is fat, dark, or good for nothing makes a deep impact in her. These voices keep on haunting her mind. It affects her confidence and self-esteem in her activities and the overall way she approaches life and people.

Even though externally she may have achieved success but internally she will feel low because these words stay with her. It becomes difficult for her to come out of the impact of these words, but it can surely be overcome by meditation, healing and therapy.

So please- Your words have tremendous power even the words you tell to yourself. Words can create an invisible deep scar within which just so damaging. So chose the words that you tell yourself, your friends, relatives, parents, spouse, kids, colleagues and everyone very wisely.

Also do not give unsolicited advice, force, control, label, judge, and meddle with people. These are just a few versions of violence, sometimes subtle sometimes clear but it does leave a mark on others which is very deep and difficult to get over. They will not appreciate and whenever possible they will only take revenge.

An important lesson that you cannot want something more for someone than they want for themselves- and that some people simply don't believe in light. Some people are so naïve they just don't get this. You can only help people if they are willing to help themselves. It doesn't matter if you shine light in their faces because if they don't believe in it, they won't see it.

Quote- Flowers only bloom when they are ready. People are the same way. You cannot rush or force them to open just because you think it's time. Be patient- Timber Hawkeye Quote- Never discourage anyone who continually makes progress, no matter how slow- Aristotle.

Topic 18- Understanding Anger

Anger is like a mask that covers hurt feelings or fears.

So, next time you are angry- see if you can trace the origin of that feeling to its roots. Check is it---

Disappointment

Shame

Fear

Hurt

Betrayal

Impatience

Embarrassment

Or anything else

Screaming or getting angry will rarely give you results that you would like to accomplish.

Take a moment to understand the reason for your anger.

Solution- Don't express, rather explain your anger to people and you will immediately open the doors to solutions and understanding.

Well, many people say its "easier said than done", but always remember the other option you have. As difficult as it may seem to explain our anger to put across our fears and insecurities in a healthy way it's just far more dangerous, harmful and damaging to lose our temper but it's also damaging to suppress our anger and keep things within.

Expressing our anger leads to irreparable loss in relationships, finance, career. Suppressing our anger can lead to cancer, blood pressure, thyroid, ulcers.

So always try however difficult it may seem initially to try to explain your anger and not to express it.

Then as time progresses you will become an expert at explaining your anger and not expressing it, which will be so beneficial to you in all spheres of your life.

Quote- You will not be punished for your anger; you will be punished by your anger- The Buddha

The solution- If you practise this you will be able to avoid major damages caused by your anger. Whenever you are angry try and watch your anger. Like someone else is angry and you are watching it. Watching your anger will surely prevent you from making mistakes… like using wrong words or actions. See by getting angry you will be the major loser.

So, one more point whenever you are angry watch your breaths… make them longer... take deep breathes, try pushing the breathes to two inches below your belly button. These two techniques will surely cool you down and totally prevent you from makes any severe mistakes which you would regret badly later on.

Quote- No one can make you feel inferior without your consent- Eleanor Roosevelt.

Topic 19- The Healing Power of Love

Love is the strongest medicine.

Quote- Love is the only force capable of transforming an enemy into a friend- Martin Luther King Jr.

If you are of the thinking that love isn't necessary- well without it life would surely be miserable. It wouldn't be fulfilled. NO amount of money can ever fulfil it. NO amount of power can ever fulfil it. There is a heart shaped hole in all our lives and only love can fill it.

Friendships nurture our hearts with that love- just as tress nourish the earth with oxygen, good friends are like rainforest of affection.

Just as anyone would suffocate without air in their lungs, someone in depression is simply suffocating in life because of lack of love.

Action- So meet your neighbour's, get to know your colleagues and befriend your classmates. A stranger is simply a friend you haven't met yet. Do random acts of love and kindness you never know when it could literally save a person's life.

Important- Never underestimate the healing power of love. It's as important as the food we eat for survival and yet love is free and available in unlimited supply.

Love Meditation

Topic 20- The Power

Some believe in God, some don't – well that's ok.

But surely there is an energy that keeps us alive beyond our five senses- and it's very mysterious. Our breathes go on, on their own. We don't take them, while walking, eating, talking, playing, sleeping even when someone is in comma, breathes go on, on their own. Some power is running these breathes.

Some people refer to this power as God, divine, nature, supreme some even call it "the universe". The name you give it doesn't matter as much as the appreciation you have for it.

So, always have appreciation for this power. Try and be grateful for each breath. Just be happy and joyful to be alive and rest will follow. It should be like you are in an ecstasy just because you are alive. You could not have woken up this morning.

The deepest secret… be happy/joyful, like you are in an ecstasy, no matter what outer circumstances and you will see miracles in your life. As the universe responds to your frequency. If it's in bliss you will only attract circumstances to keep you more and more in bliss... if its sad/tensed /worried it will only attract more and more circumstances that will keep you that way. Choice is yours. Chose to be blissful no matter what and expect miracles.

God is not "out there" for us to pursue; God is in our heart to discover.

Topic 21- The Divinity Within

While inviting friends over for dinner, we try to cook something special and make sure the house is clean and tidy. We take out our best cutlery, put on some music and maybe even light a few candles to create a relaxed atmosphere. We want to ensure that the guests have a pleasant experience of our home.

Question- Why don't we treat/respect ourselves the same way?

We at times have our meals standing in the kitchen near the sink or we have it while watching TV and its messy all around.

Embrace your own worthiness- treat yourself with immense dignity and respect as you would to a revered guest. Pay homage to the God within you and celebrate your greatness every day!

Buddha says- You, yourself, as much as anybody in the entire universe deserves your love and affection.

Topic 22- Danger of Religious Teachings

Every religious scripture depicts someone else's experience of God. The text may be very inspiring, but reading it is just not the same as experiencing divinity first hand.

For example, romance novels, you reading them or watching romantic movies is just not the same as falling in love yourself. That would be a completely different feeling and experience. Right? Also, everybody's encounter to love is different.

Similarly, each person's experience of the divine is quite different and personal to them.

Jesus, Buddha, Dalai Lama, Guru Nanak, Mahavir, Osho may all have attained enlightenment- but their experience was totally different, but one thing is common among all of them, and that is compassion for others.

Scriptures can be inspiring but also dangerous as you will believe someone else's experience of truth and blindly follow it. That will not give you the real divine experience which would transform you. That will just keep you moving about in circles without any real change. Yes, surely it would make you feel religious and that you are doing something spiritual but it just won't work the way it should. The same difference like reading a romantic novel and actually falling in love.

So, do not limit the possibility of your knowledge and experiences to what you have read in books. Experience for yourself- make it your reality. That would be your own and only that would transform you into a new being.

Topic 23- Let Your Actions Speak

Buddha was virtuous, had tremendous faith in loves capacity to heal and believed in peace and brotherhood. Much like many other saints and masters.

We mistakenly worship the teacher instead of the teaching. We idolize the teachers. We idolize the teachers to have been more than mere humans and construct a beautiful but unreasonably exaggerated tales of their lives. We have the same power and divinity within us as what Buddha had, Mahavir had, Jesus had, Guru Nanak had and so had all the enlighten masters.

The best way to express our faith is to live as they did.

Accept your neighbours – which includes all beings of all walks of life, not just those who have your ideologies and have the same skin colour. Be kind to everyone; give; forgive; let go of greed, hatred and ignorance; be passionate and compassionate and trust that God knows what he is doing- and there isn't anything that God isn't or can't be.

So, have gratitude for the teachings and lead by example by your actions and have full trust in the process.

Topic 24- How to Thrive and Excel in life?

Meditation is a method of achieving a state of no-mind. That is when we get divine guidance. That we can say is the highest stage of intelligence." This is when we get fresh ideas, intuitions and creativity. Buddha called it "Shunya man", Kabir called it "Unmani". This is when our third eye opens and we can see things as they truly are.

Prayer on the other hand is a way of expressing our deep appreciation to God, mother nature or the universe at large for the gift of life.

A true prayer is one of gratitude for the blessings in our lives; it is NOT a time to be greedy and to ask for more.

We already have everything we need in order to be happy. If we cannot be happy right now, we will not be happy even if we achieve the desired things.

Even saying "God please give me strength" implies we don't already have it (when we actually do). Simply say "Thank you God for the strength" – and you'll be empowered to tap into its unlimited supply.

By being grateful for what we have, we generate energy towards more of the same.

So don't focus on what you don't have, because energy flows where attention goes. If you focus on lack of money – you would be in lack of money always. If you focus on lack of health, you would be facing health issues.

Golden Words- By being grateful for what we have – we generate energy towards getting more of what we want.

Important learning- So don't focus on what you DON'T have, because energy flows where attention goes. Meaning you'll simply land up with more things that you don't want.

Closing message –

Meditate to reach no mind - the highest level of intelligence. To get divine guidance and to raise your awareness.

Pray to express your gratitude for what you have.

Work- leave no stone unturned in your efforts to success.

Feelings- Visualise that you have achieved your goals and forever stay in that feeling. Always be in the expectation that something good is round the corner.

This is the formula to thrive and excel in life!

Beautiful Saying- If the only prayer you ever say in your entire life is “Thank You” it will be enough - Johannes Eckhart.
